Through this analysis, we've determined the best you should buy. Update as October 28, 2021:Checkout The Best Soundbar for a detailed review of all the top . You'll enjoy premium audio with this easy-to-install soundbar. If you prefer, you can use the built-in Bluetooth function to stream your favorite tunes from your mobile device. Audio power is boosted with this soundbar, thanks to the inclusion of two full-range stereo speakers. In our analysis of 65 expert reviews, the VIZIO 29-Inch Wall Mount Soundbar placed 8th when we looked at the top 22 products in the category. For the full ranking, see below. Upgrade to premium audio with VIZIO's 29" 2.0 Sound Bar. Best in class audio performance delivers up to 95 dB of room filling, crystal clear sound with less than 1% total harmonic distortion. If you've got limited space, check out the VIZIO SB2920. At just 29 inches long, it's made for smaller spaces, but with 95 decibels of power on board, it can still bring the noise when you need it. Our favorite part: it's got Bluetooth built in, so streaming music to it is a snap. If you've got limited space and high expectations, this is the soundbar to get. Clear, resonant vocals that make it easy to understand dialog happening on the screen. It's also built solidly. High volume level for very loud music without any distortion Easy to set up, use, and troubleshoot. The bass, especially, does well to retain a lot of character and definition even when turned up pretty high, and it never falls into the usual pitfall of becoming muddy. Provides a powerful boost to the speakers in your thin flat screen TV, and you can hook up multiple devices at the same time. This option doesn't come with a subwoofer. Lacks HDMI, so you can't connect your video sources directly to it. Does not have a sub-woofer. A bit bulkier than other soundbars. Some users prefer a more granular volume control. Now that you can order a film at the press of a button, movie night has moved from the cineplex to living rooms. For that reason, it's likely no surprise that consumers report they'd rather watch a movie at home than leave the house. But getting the same experience at home as you do in a theater can be challenging. Even if you take advantage of the low prices on high-quality big-screen TVs, duplicating true movie theater surround sound can get expensive. In recent years, soundbars have advanced to the point where they now can simulate surround sound for a fraction of the cost of a speaker set. But one soundbar can differ dramatically from another, so it's important to do your research before you buy. Soundbars can range in price, but you're sure to find one that fits within your budget. When shopping for soundbars, pay close attention to the range of tones you'll get. Some soundbars can't handle bass as well as others, even when they're promising the best sound quality. Once you get your soundbar home, you'll generally be on your own to make it work with your existing systems. One of the best things you can do is take note of the equipment you already have and make sure the soundbar you choose is compatible. Many of today's speakers use Bluetooth connectivity to allow you to eliminate unsightly wires. So if you have an older TV or receiver, you may find the soundbar you've bought won't connect. Finally, stop to think about where you'll set up your new soundbar, as well as any speakers you plan to add on to it. There are soundbars you can mount on the wall, while there are many others that can be set on your furniture in front of your TV. Whichever option you choose, note the dimensions of your soundbar in advance to ensure you know how much room it will take up. If your soundbar doesn't sound good, there's no point in even having one. If you're going for the best sound, consider the Bose Solo 5 TV Soundbar & Universal Remote Control. It has great sound and great ranges. The Bose Solo also performs better in the deeper ranges, with bass you can feel in your chest. For those interested in building a true home theater, adding on extra speakers is the key to success. Some models allow you to easily buy extra speakers to connect to your soundbar. Setup can be intimidating if you don't consider yourself a tech guru. Some models can be tricky to set up, especially when it comes to pairing with other equipment. One of the biggest concerns when shopping for any speaker is where it will be. Some models are designed to hang on a wall, but they can also rest in front of your TV. Others can be mounted, but they look great in front of your TV. If you're limited on space, you may want to avoid any soundbar that comes with a separate subwoofer that you'll need to place. If you're looking for the smallest soundbar, the SAMSUNG HW-T450 Dolby Audio Soundbar is the shortest, at only 2.1 inches tall. One size benefit to smaller models is that they can be easily mounted horizontally or vertically, with the sensor automatically adjusting the sound depending on how you've oriented it. If you have an Amazon product that uses Alexa, look for a unit that you can connect to your device, so that you can play music on command. With some soundbars, you'll have access to an app that you can then use to control your speakers. However, they may not come with a remote control, which means you'll need a universal remote if you can't connect it to an existing smart remote. Some soundbars come with a remote, but they're still a bit bulky. You'll also need to have two AAA batteries on hand for the models that use batteries. Look for a soundbar that is built to last with durable ABS plastic beneath the soft cloth cover. Be aware that some models can scratch easily. When it comes to price, you're going to pay much more for some soundbars than other speakers. Be sure to consider whether you'll also need to pay for separate speakers. In some instances, the price may also include a subwoofer, so keep that in mind. The ear buds that ship with the iPod produce reasonably good sound but do not allow you to share your music with others. If you want to play music over your iPod and allow everyone to hear, you must connect an external speaker. A Vizio sound bar is a single-piece speaker system with an integrated amplifier usually used with televisions. However, the thin shape of a Vizio sound bar also makes it easy to carry around and use as a speaker for an iPod. Power off the iPod. Plug the Vizio sound bar AC adapter into an electrical outlet if you have not already done so. Connect one end of the 3.5mm audio cable to the headphone jack on the iPod, then connect the other end to the 3.5mm "Audio In" jack on the rear of the Vizio sound bar. Adjust the volume control on the Vizio sound bar so that you will be able to hear sound from the iPod but do not set it too loud until you start playing music from the iPod. Power on the iPod. Select a track you want to hear, then press or tap the "Play" button on the iPod to begin playing music over the Vizio sound bar. Adjust the volume on the Vizio sound bar again until the sound level is at an appropriate level. © 1996-2014, Amazon.com, Inc. or its affiliates Photo Courtesy: Pixabay These days, you can watch movies at home and have a richer sound experience than a theater, thanks to sound bars. Whether you're listening to music, watching movies and TV shows, or gaming, a sound bar can make your entertainment better. With all the sound bars on the market, how do you find the best one for your needs? Here's a list of the best sound bars you can get, as reviewed by consumers like you. MORE FROM CONSUMERSEARCH.COM
